"Tell the truth and don't be afraid"

Senate moving closer toward no-confidence vote

By MATT CAMPBELL
 Staff writer

Following a more than three-hour Faculty Senate meeting Tuesday, it wasn't really a question of whether to offer a no-confidence vote against Eastern President Stan Rives and two other key administrators, but how.

The motion to hold a confidence election for Rives; Verna Armstrong, the vice president for business affairs; and Vic Robeson, the Physical Plant director, was introduced and tabled at last Tuesday's senate meeting.

Once re-introduced, though, the debate quickly turned to whether such a vote should be implemented university-wide and when it could be held.

Senate member Luis Clay-Mendez pointed out that a no-confidence vote does not necessarily mean those voted for or against will lose their positions. However, as discussed by the senate, the vote

Armstrong responds to complaints

Verna Armstrong, the vice president for business affairs, answered charges from unidentified steam plant employees Tuesday along with questions a letter from those employees raised among Faculty Senate members.

In a letter sent to senate Chair David Carpenter, the employees expressed concerns about steam plant management as well as the coal conversion project that Eastern and the Capitol Development Board are in the process of completing.

A 1983 project, the coal conversion project is modeled after several similar plants and is intended to improve the efficiency of the process by which coal is burned and to increase coal production in Illinois.

It has fallen two to three years behind schedule and is reportedly in need of $1.3 million for improvements.

However, the employees questioned why that money is necessary when the Decatur-based A.E. Staley company has offered to donate Eastern about $200,000 worth of used coal firing equipment. Armstrong explained that since the Staley offer was made, the company has undergone a management change and has been difficult to contact. The offer was not rejected, but has been in limbo while the university attempted to contact the company.

"Why would we not want it to work quickly?" Armstrong asked. "We shouldn't be willing to take the project until it is fully operational."

As the project stands, senate member John Miller questioned if the coal conversion plant is not something of an albatross.

Armstrong also explained why an Indiana-based coal company holds a contract with Eastern for the project instead of an Illinois would indicate a consensus of incompetence and negligence on the part of certain administrators.

Senate members began talk of a no-confidence vote after the Stanczak report was released and responded to by the president during an open meeting Feb. 22. The Stanczak investigation was conducted by Bloomington attorney

David Stanczak, who was hired by the BOG to study allegations of hiring improprieties in Armstrong's area.

In addition to reasons from the Stanczak report, Clay-Mendez added another to the justifications for a no-confidence vote against Rives.

Clay-Mendez said Rives has been negligent in his duties as a university officer to promote affirmative action, specifically in regard to the hirings of Scott Walker, Armstrong's son; and Kim Furumo, the director of Budget and Planning Services. Both hirings were among those looked into through the Stanczak report, and Clay-Mendez said Eastern's Affirmative Action office was circumvented with both.

However, the senate members also amended the no-confidence motion to delete the vice president for academic affairs, Robert Kindrick, from among Rives, Armstrong and Robeson.

Kindrick was part of the original motion for the role he played in the new general education program. That program was examined by the

Yard foresees ERA in next century

Women's rights activist speaks to crowd of 200

By DEBBIE CARLSON
 Staff writer

Only five minutes before her speech, Molly Yard said she wasn't nervous.

Maybe most others who were about to speak in front of an audience of 200 would be, but then again, most others aren't like Yard, the president of the National Organization for Women.

"I've never been nervous (to speak in public). I started public speaking in high school. I used to go into oratorical contests," she said.

She gave the crowd in the Grand Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union Tuesday night a lesson of women's place in American history.

A grandmother of five, Yard explained to the audience what happened to one woman who dared to express her views on religion. "... A woman who came to this country in 1630 and had the (tenacity) in the Massachusetts Bay Colony to stand up in church and say she had as much right to talk about theology and God as any man had.

"She was ... banished, she and her husband and her kids to Rhode Island..." Yard said. The woman, Anne Hutchinson, was the first recorded case of a woman who stood up and spoke out for herself.

Yard added that Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton had organized the first meeting for women's suffrage in 1848, which had a notable effect on all major events in the women's movement, even up to the defeat of the Equal Rights Amendment in 1982.

Yard stated that although the ERA was defeated, she foresees it being on the constitution by the next century. "It's a major, major issue and we are determined to get it on the constitution. Right now it's in hiatus."

Along with ratifying the ERA, she said, NOW also believes in giving women reproductive freedom. According to Yard, if women cannot control that, they have no freedom at all.

However, Yard said, while these two issues are very important to NOW, there are other issues which they are concerned about. "We (NOW) watch the events around us. ... We unleash a war in the Middle East and I thought it was totally insane act because there's nuclear power, chemical warfare ...

Pentagon makes plans to send troops home

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration said Tuesday it would steer clear of the civil strife that has hit Iraq following the Gulf War and warned Iraq's neighbors to do the same.

The Pentagon made plans to welcome home up to 15,000 veterans of the war during the next week. President Bush hailed the troops as "American heroes" and said "home towns all across America" will welcome them home soon.

"Their magnificent victory in the Gulf has brought a renewed sense in pride and confidence here at home," Bush said. "It's contagious, it's all over our country. You can feel it every single minute."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the administration welcomed the release of 35 American and allied POWs to Red Cross officials in Baghdad.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said the POWs, of which 15 are Americans, will be flown out of Baghdad on Wednesday after an allied transport carries 294 Iraqi POWs back home.

He said poor weather had delayed the exchange, which had been scheduled for Tuesday. Maj. Gen. Martin Brandtner, the deputy director of operations for the Joint Staff, said interviews with the first six U.S. POWs to be released indicated "they were treated well."

The general said there was no reason to doubt Iraqi claims that they held no more allied prisoners.

At the State Department, spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler cautioned Iran and other outsiders to stay out of the civil strife that has afflicted a dozen Iraqi cities.

"The United States respects and believes in the territorial integrity of Iraq, and we do not believe that other states should involve themselves in the internal matters of Iraq, and that other states should refrain from interfering in Iraq's internal affairs," she said.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said "significant unrest" directed against President Saddam Hussein has occurred inside Iraq, but that the United States and its coalition partners won't get involved.

"I'm not sure whose side you'd want to be on," Cheney said.

As for homecoming U.S. troops, Pentagon military sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said 4,400 members of the Army's XVIII Airborne Corps, including members of the 82nd Airborne Division, would be among the first group returning on Thursday.

The sources said Bush was expected to welcome them at Andrews Air Force base outside Washington, but White House deputy spokesman Roman Popadiuk said he was not aware of plans for a presidential welcome.

Within a week of the initial return ceremony, up to 15,000 members of all service branches are expected to be back in the United States from the gulf area, said a senior Pentagon official.

coal company, considering it is receiving state funds.

By the legal bidding process, the out-of-state bidder must have bid less than 5 percent less than an in-state company to award the contract to the Illinois company over another. Armstrong said Amax Coal Company of Indiana bid about 10 percent less than the closest Illinois bidder.

Armstrong also addressed concerns about communication among the steam plant employees, her office and Charlie Smith, who resigned Friday as steam plant director.

Carpenter noted that various problems precipitated a grievance against Smith filed in June of 1989 by 10 steam plant employees.

Armstrong said she was aware that Smith's "people skills" weren't what they should have been, but Smith was only part of the many situations and problems within the steam plant at the time.

"I think the information in the letter demonstrates we surely" should have kept the employees there informed on the situation, Armstrong said.

Smith resigned primarily because he was "fed up" with the "rumors and false allegations" surrounding him as a result of a recent investigation into Armstrong's area of control.

That investigation, conducted by Bloomington attorney David Stanczak at the request of the BOG, was prompted by senate inquiries into alleged hiring improprieties in Armstrong's area of control.

How do we know what we are unleashing?" she questioned.

Yard called for a revamp of the country's ideals: "We must have a more representative government if we are ever going to meet the needs of this country. We have too many people getting richer and richer and too many people getting poorer and poorer. It's time to stop it."

The speech was sponsored by the Women's Studies Council and the University Board in conjunction with Women's History Month.

Student reaction to her speech was favorable. Kevin Dwyer, freshman secondary education major said he admired her energy. "She was very inspiring... I think it's great UB can bring to this conservative campus a liberal point of view so we can see both sides."

Council on Academic Affairs from a year before it approved it for implementation in the fall of 1991.

The program was returned recently by Rives, after he questioned how effective the new core would be. It is rescheduled to be implemented in the fall of 1992.

The charges against Rives, Armstrong and Robeson go beyond the senate, though.

Faculty Senate Chair David Carpenter read a letter sent by 10 Civil Service employees representing a majority of those on campus who also call for a vote of no confidence against Rives and the others.

Referring to Rives open meeting, the letter stated "the questions of hiring practices do not disappear when a hand slap is the punishment alleged violators receive for falsifying employment applications. This only raises additional questions."

Rives had no comment on the possibility of a no-confidence vote, while Armstrong could not be reached for comment.

However, Robeson said, "they (Faculty Senate) are going to do whatever they think they have to."

But no action will be taken until questions raised are resolved.

"I think having a university-wide election could be dangerous if we didn't have a very large turnout," Carpenter said. "If we end up with a 50 percent turnout (of university personnel) — the majority of which vote no confidence in the administration — the individuals (Rives, Armstrong and Robeson) can still say the other 50 percent didn't vote for it."

The debate was tabled once again until the next meeting so the senate can discuss who should vote and who the senate represents.

Carpenter believed since the Civil Service workers had turned to the senate as they have, the senate could represent their views through a senate vote.

The senate will discuss how to implement the vote at the beginning of the meeting on March 12.

Union dispute may be resolved next week

By CATHY PODWOJSKI
Associate news editor

The director of the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board will have two questions to answer by early next week when she decides the validity of a petition filed by some Eastern faculty to decertify their union.

Board director Julie Lewis said she must determine that at least 30 percent of the faculty within the union bargaining unit has signed the petition as law requires before a decertification election could be held.

As well, Lewis said, it must be determined if only 30 percent of Eastern's faculty constitutes its own bargaining unit or if the number of petition signatures must be 30 percent of the entire UPI bargaining unit, consisting of Eastern and the other four Board of Governors schools.

Mathematics Professor Lewis Coon filed the petition with the state labor relations board Thursday on the basis that Eastern is a "well-identified, unique portion" of the entire unit. Faculty at Western filed similar petitions.

Lewis said the decision will not be made until most likely Monday or Tuesday to give the parties until the end of the day Friday to provide supplementary information. In this case, that would refer most specifically to the university, which technically is a third party to the case.

Lewis added that the petition, filed by 202 of Eastern's bargaining unit members according to a letter from Coon, requests that Eastern be severed from the rest of the bargaining unit and then a decertification election be held.

Lewis could not confirm the number of signatures contained on the petitions, but did say the petitioners indicated it was more than 30 percent.

The petitions were filed from the UPI's two bargaining units – A, which represents faculty; and B, which represents temporary faculty and support staff such as from the Counseling Center.

Coon has said he believes an election most likely would be held by the end of the semester.

If such an election is held and returns show Eastern's faculty are in favor of decertifying the UPI, the faculty could bargain directly with the administration or an appointed official on salary, tenure and other related issues.

Coon said the UPI has done little for faculty in terms of salary increases and that Eastern's salaries are below the averages at other universities.

State UPI President Mitch Vogel has said he is encouraged, though, with the relatively small number of people who signed, indicating the majority still favor UPI representation.

If Lewis determines an election will be held, the UPI could contest that decision. A hearing date for such an occurrence, which is automatically set in cases like these, has been scheduled for March 25, Lewis said.

An investigator through the labor relations board, which hears claims and complaints for all state educational bodies, and an attorney through the BOG have been named to examine the issues in the case.

After the facts are collected and if Lewis determines an election should not be held, then the petitioners may appeal the decision to a three-member labor relations board.

The UPI, which was formed 14 years ago, has represented Eastern for 12 years. Faculty member Jayne Ozier currently serves as Eastern's UPI chapter president.

AB cuts $5,000 from Sports, Recreation budget proposal

By ANN GILL
Staff writer

Eastern's Apportionment Board wrapped up final budget presentations Tuesday by cutting $5,052 from the requested $108,165 from the Sports and Recreation budget.

Recreational sports director David Dutler addressed the AB at Tuesday's meeting. Sports and Recreation had increased their budget by $15,690.

Dutler informed the board of an increase in requested student fees being associated with the new Student Recreation Center, and an increase in student help and programs that would be associated with the center.

Sports and Recreation requested an increase of over $10,000 for student help.

AB co-chair Steve Beamer made the motion that the AB cut $2,000 from the student help payroll line item stating that the justification by Dutler did not conclude that the additional help would be need by the center.

AB member Shelby Scott made the motion to cut $4,139 from promotions which would cut 13 full-page ads in The Daily Eastern News. "This item needs to be trimmed up, but some full-page ads need to be put in," Beamer added.

Executive Vice President Martha Price added that even though the recreation center is new and most students know about it, additional information needs to be offered to the students.

Scott's original motion failed and the board passed a motion made by Beamer that cut the line item $1,592, which would enough funds to equal approximately five full-page ads.

The AB made additional motions to amend $860 from wearing apparel, which cut the purchase of 200 T-shirts.

Also, $200 was cut from office supplies and $400 was cut from printing costs which will reduce the number of recreational sports booklets.

The board approved a total of $103,113 to Sports and Recreation with amendments.

The AB must submit budgets for approval later this semester.

Eastern will host annual Affirmative Action Day

By PAM MILLER
Staff writer

Eastern will host the sixth annual Affirmative Action Day Wednesday that will conclude with a banquet at 6:30 p.m. at the Charleston Inn.

Affirmative Action Day has been declared as "the day that (Eastern President Stan Rives) has proclaimed to raise awareness of what affirmative action is all about," said Rhonda Chasteen, Eastern's assistant director of affirmative action.

Chasteen added that awards will be given at the banquet to groups on campus that have shown support for affirmative action.

"I think it's important that individuals think about what affirmative action is all about and how they can incorporate the ideals of affirmative action into their daily lives," Chasteen said.

Affirmative action is the support and contributions given by groups on campus to minorities, women, and persons with disabilities, she said.

"It is important that as an institution we reflect the culturally diverse world in which we live. We need to keep affirmative action in mind as positions (faculty and staff) are being filled," Chasteen said. These positions need to be filled with people ready to show affirmative action, she said.

Task force gives recommendations on date rape

By LORI HIGGINS
Campus editor

Because of the results of a 1989 Eastern study on acquaintance and date rape, recommendations given to the President's Council are currently being implemented on campus.

The survey was conducted during the fall semester of 1989 by the task force on date rape among 54 undergraduate classes. A total of 1,693 students participated in the survey, with 1,029 women and 664 men surveyed.

Results of the survey showed that a large number of the women had been a victim of an acquaintance or date rape. Of the 149 women who reported they had been raped, 59 said they were victimized by someone they knew "extremely well."

Diana Zuhone, a judicial affairs officer and member of the task force, said the members of the group sent a copy of about 20 recommendations to Glenn Williams, vice president for student affairs. Within those recommendations the task force outlined things that should be done on campus. The specific recommendations have not been released.

One implementation that has surfaced from the recommendations is the design of a brochure on acquaintance and date rape.

"We're working on a brochure," Zuhone said. She added the brochure will discuss "what exactly are we talking about – what is sexual assault, where to go on campus if you've been assaulted, what helping services are available and what a person can expect to have happen."

The brochure is still in the planning stages, but Zuhone said they hope to have it ready for new student orientation.

Williams added he hopes the brochure can be worked into a new student orientation program. "One of the things is to change behaviors and people's perceptions of what constitutes safety, aggression and attack."

The survey suggests it is important for all entering students to be informed "about social life, especially dating relationships and the sexual-violence consequences of alcohol use. Preventative programming that encourages healthier sex roles and teaches about date and acquaintance rape should be reinforced each year," she added.

In addition to providing preventative education, another area of the recommendations involves response to victims and aggressors.

Zuhone said it is important for victims of acquaintance or date rape to go out and get help. The survey states that it is geared toward making campus services and victim assistance more visible and publicized.

"If a victim comes to this office (Judicial Affairs Office), we will determine all the facts and give them a list of resources," she said.

She stressed that students should realize that coming to talk to someone in the judicial affairs office or any other service that deals with the issue does not mean the student has to press charges against the aggressor.

Clean up 'Big Event Day' to offer services for community

By SUZANNE OLIVER
Student government editor

The Student Senate is attempting to get a head start on next semester by working on implementing several new campus programs.

Amy Jobin, chair of the student awareness committee, said her committee is planning to organize a volunteer, campus-wide cleanup called "Big Event Day." The day, Jobin said, is targeted for this fall.

"We would have people go into the community for cleaning, mowing, raking leaves etc.," Jobin said. She added the senate would also designate a cleanup weekend and ask local stores to donate garbage bags, rakes and "other stuff to get the job done."

The senate brought the campus cleanup idea from COSGA (Conference on Student Government Associations). Five student senate members recently attended the conference, which was held at Texas A&M University.

Another idea from conference is to have a presidential forum that Senate Speaker Kristy Koch said senate will try to organize for the fall semester.

"It's a good idea for incoming students to become familiar with the university's issues," Koch said.

The forum would include having Eastern's president and vice presidents speak in an open forum for students to ask questions about the university. Jobin added the senate is also "writing up legislation for an ex-officio membership" for a senate member to be on Eastern's Faculty Senate. Presently, a senate member sits on the board for only informational purposes.

Waiver of $100 registration fee a needed break

Eastern has announced that students who can legitimately prove they cannot afford the $100 deposit now required for the touch-tone telephone system will get a break – temporarily.

One of four requirements to register under the new system is that students provide a $100 deposit in order to register and get the classes they want for this coming summer or fall. Registration began on Monday, meaning the majority of Eastern students have had to come with an unexpected $100 this week. That's why the new system has been so heavily criticized. Students accustomed to Eastern's current registration system can register, not pay a penny, and have an assurance that they'll still get the courses they chose.

Under the new system, without the $100 deposit, students are in jeopardy of not being able to register, consequently not getting their classes and ultimately not graduating when they originally thought they would. For students who have already been at Eastern, asking them to come up with an additional $100 in the beginning of March is an unexpected and unwarranted surprise.

The system puts poorer students, minority students and those who receive financial aid in great jeopardy since they are used to paying what they can afford at the beginning of each semester – not five months prior.

But those students can get a break – at least until they do run into some money.

Department chairs who have students that they feel will not be able to make the new $100 deposit will now be able to ask Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn Williams for a waiver.

The waivers are based on "pure judgment" on the part of Williams, who has said in an average year that he usually grants 110-120 waivers. That could jump dramatically with the implementation of the touch-tone registration system.

QUOTE

Money is like an arm or a leg - use it or lose it.

Henry Ford

Time is certainly a needed commodity

There are a handful of people in my life that I've become pretty good at forgetting about.

On Monday, I forgot about one of them – again. I've spent the past two days thinking about her. Now, I have only grown angry with myself while I realize how I've inadvertently pushed her to the back burner. I always promise myself that I'll take out some time to write, or maybe call. But when you're neck-deep in the newspaper business, anyone can tell you that time is a precious commodity.

Generally, I don't write columns of such a personal nature like this – there's always a criticism that you readers won't be able to identify with what I'm talking about. But I've only got a couple of these columns left, so I figured there was no better time to do this. And when I'm done, I'm convinced there will be a smattering of readers who can say they've worn these very same shoes.

Besides, I owe it to her.

I've spent all my life growing up with this woman. I remember when we were just old enough to go to school – I was in the third grade and she was in first grade. We went to a Catholic grade school and had to wear those tacky, Catholicish uniforms. Mine was navy-blue pants, a navy sweater and (I think it was yellow) dress shirt. She had to wear a scotch-print blue and plaid dress, (I think hers was yellow, too) shirt and blue knee-socks. Now that I think about it, our nuns really dressed us like a bunch of dorks.

Anyway, I can remember her first day of school. This was nothing like kindergarten where you could go home after a half-day. This was the real thing, where the really big kids (like fourth-graders) tripped you in the hallways if they thought you were weird. Jodi was scared to death. I remember my mom telling me to "take good care" of her and then me reassuring her that first grade was no big deal. And I knew what I was talking about, too. By then, I was already in the third grade – I'd been at this for two years. If she didn't know where the lunch line was, I told her I'd show her. If she was having trouble with schoolwork, I'd told her I'd help her. If any boys were giving her a hard time, I told her I'd pound them (as long as they weren't fourth graders). Back then, I really was out of my way to make sure she was OK.

And I quickly learned that she'd do just fine. Before long, she didn't need me to check in with her at lunch because she was busy talking to her friends. She didn't need me to help her with her homework because she didn't like to do it anyway. And if any boys gave her a hard time, she no doubt would pound them herself even if they were fourth graders.

Once I was beyond the fourth grade, it wasn't cool to hang out with your sister at school. And like most siblings, we grew to become the greatest of rivals. I'd hit her, make fun of her and throw everything but the kitchen sink at her. If she ever tried to get even with me, I would convince my little brother to snitch on her. But she was too smart for that. Before long, she'd would have managed to convince my little brother to turn around and snitch on me.

At one point, she even orchestrates a mutiny in the neighborhood club so she could become the president – and she was the only girl. I still can't believe that and "the gang" were gullible enough to call her "Queen."

As the years went on, we kept a distance – you know, we minded our own business.

Now she's just 22, has a decent job and lives away from home in an apartment with her fiancé. This Christmas, they hardly had enough money to pay the phone bill but managed to still scrape enough to still give me a Christmas gift. She's had some really nasty turns along the way, but she's managed to pull them over one at a time.

I was talking to her on the phone the other night – all of these things just started flashing back. She always did OK without me, but she never forgot that I was there.

Monday was her birthday. Once again, I missed it. It's kind of funny how people can forget things that.

Your Turn

Before we decertify the union, consider the consequences

Dear editor:

In his letter to the faculty ("Your turn," Feb. 27), Professor Lewis Coon proposes that we decertify the union and "rely on fairly chosen and properly trained administrators at the local campus level." Sure, professor, and then the Easter Bunny will come and bring us all a nice basket of eggs.

Before I came to Eastern, I taught at a university which did not have a union. The year before my tenure decision, a fairly chosen and properly trained administrator at the local campus was appointed acting department chair. She promptly set about to deny tenure to six well-qualified members of the department (over a period of three years). Two others, who just happened to be good friends of the acting chair, got favorable tenure recommendations.

The six who were denied tenure each won a reversal from an appeals committee. The Provost ignored these faculty committees and upheld the decisions of the local administrator whom he had trained and appointed. Although several people fought their cases further, little could be done. The AAUP (American Association of University Professors) sent a few letters, but there was no binding contract and no grievance procedure and no organization to insure that fair, professional evaluation procedures be followed. The original decisions stood. The local administrator was given a promotion and a big raise. The Provost went on to become president at another school.

Frankly, I question Professor Coon's motives. Apparently he hasn't suffered too much under the union. He has the considerable time and money to mail out hundreds of letters to faculty on two campuses (with a metered return letter enclosed). I suggest he use those resources to strengthen the union and improve its representation, rather than contrive to take the benefits and protections away from the rest of us.

Help those in Haiti by donating shoes

Dear editor:

Imagine having to walk every day on hard ground – bare feet. This is not unusual for the people of Haiti. On our recent trip with Newman Catholic Community to Haiti, we found a simple way which we could help. These hardworking people desperately need shoes. The Newman Center would like to announce the beginning of our campaign to raise 1,000 pairs of shoes and $1,000. Each of us can do our part. We all have plenty of shoes, but the Haitians don't have any. Do you have a pair of shoes that you don't want? And a dollar to help ship the shoes?

The shoes and money may be dropped off at the Newman Center (corner of Ninth and Lincoln) or in a designated room in each residence hall. Check the bulletin boards. If you have any questions call us (Call 581-5120 and Beth – 581-3111). Thank you for helping us make a difference.

Model U.N. captures awards at conference

By LORI HIGGINS
Campus editor

Eastern's chapter of the Model United Nations garnered two top awards at the Model U.N.'s Midwest conference this weekend in St. Louis.

Antoinette Spinner, president of Eastern's Model United Nations, said the conference is designed to "simulate various countries which participate in the real United Nations."

It also provided the 18 delegates from Eastern a chance to compete with their counterparts from the more than 70 other schools that took part in the conference.

Two of Eastern's delegates took top honors for their efforts. Tom Milowski, a graduate student, won the award for best delegate of the economic and finance committee. Also, Phillip Laird, a senior journalism major, won an award as a press delegate for his work in putting together the newspaper that is published during the conference.

"They won for their performance and their selection as a staff member," said political science Professor John Faust, the faculty adviser for the group.

Each of the participating schools represented a country that is an actual U.N. member. "Some schools represent two or three countries," Spinner said.

Eastern represented Libya and the Philippines at this year's conference.

Eastern's delegates were broken down into the various committees that function in the United Nations. Those committees include political insecurity; special political; economic and finance; and social and humanitarian.

Once in the committees, the delegates debated resolutions and gave speeches supporting their countries' positions, Spinner said.

All that led up to a session of the General Assembly. "All the countries get together and debate the resolutions that were given," she said.

Spinner said one of the "hottest" topics during the conference was the Gulf War and the development of a Middle East peace plan. As well, the delegates discussed the reinstatement of South Africa's voting rights, which was accompanied by a visit from the South African U.N. representative, Jeremy Brown Shearar.

"That was one of the more interesting things that happened," Faust said, adding he is pleased with the performance of Eastern's group.

"They represented Eastern very well and they performed very well," he added.

Spinner agreed that the group, although inexperienced, represented Eastern well at the conference.

"I think we did very good for the lack of experience on both delegations," she said. "The conference went pretty good. It was a lot of work and I believe it paid off because we did get recognition."

Job fair targets employment in St. Louis area

By MARCI SWEATMAN
Staff Writer

Students seeking permanent employment in the St. Louis area have an opportunity to attend the St. Louis Gateway to Careers Job Fair Friday at Maryville College in St. Louis.

Currently, 90 Eastern students have registered to attend the job fair. Students may still register by either filling out a late registration form at the Career Planning and Placement Center before Friday, or by registering at the door at Maryville College, said Shirley Stewart, director of the Career Planning and Placement Center.

The fair will host a wide variety of companies, "predominantly from the St. Louis area," she said.

Stewart gave a few suggestions for students attending the fair. She said, "students should wear appropriate attire," and they may come by the placement center to review a list of the companies scheduled to attend the job fair. Stewart also suggested that students "take about 50 copies of their resume to give to the representatives of the companies."

Stewart said the job outlook for graduating seniors is "hard to tell at this point. Some companies are taking the wait and see attitude; the jobs are not coming as quickly."

Although some companies are not offering many jobs, there have been a large number of companies come to Eastern, Stewart said. The recently held job fair is one good example. Over 100 companies came to Eastern's campus to look for perspective employees.

"The recession may be a factor (of the job outlook), but right now it is too early to tell," she said.

Panel to discuss Middle East

By GRETCHEN NOVAK
Staff writer

The Current Affairs Panel will give a general briefing on the current Middle East situation at 5 p.m. Wednesday in the lecture room of Lumpkin Hall.

The panel, established in 1969, is an academic program sponsored by the Army War College. The panel visits 20 to 30 campuses during each academic year.

ROTC Major Alycia Evans said the panel consists of five students and a faculty moderator. The members of the panel are selected based on their experience and keen interest in national security issues.

Each panel member specializes in one geographic area: Europe, the Soviet Union, Asia, Latin America, the Middle East or Africa. In addition, Evans said each member focuses on the study of several specific national security issues such as nuclear strategy, the Strategic Defense Initiative, arms control and ethics in the military.

The panel also will visit several classrooms Wednesday, Evans said. The members of the panel enjoy the academic challenge of participating in classes involving interdisciplinary study programs.

Cardinal defense shines; Cubs, White Sox search for rotations

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Pitching and defense stood out Tuesday in the St. Louis Cardinals' first intrasquad game of the spring. The two squads, captained by Pedro Guerrero and Ozzie Smith, played a scoreless eight innings. Eight pitchers worked under a broiling sun, and the four on Guerrero's squad allowed just one hit, a one-out double by Smith. Todd Ziege, converted from catcher to third baseman last season, took a double away from Milt Thompson, backhanding a sixth-inning smash and throwing him out. In the previous inning, center fielder Ray Lankford raced to the track in left-center field and made a diving catch of a drive by Rex Hudler. Pitching coach Joe Coleman said he was pleased with the day's work. The eight pitchers "threw a lot of quality strikes," Coleman said. "I thought they all threw well."

Cub Camp

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Pitchers Mike Harkey and Rick Sutcliffe and catcher Damon Berryhill reported progress in their recovery from shoulder injuries after throwing hard Tuesday at the Chicago Cubs' spring camp. Harkey suffered tendinitis twice last year, and he felt some tenderness in his right shoulder earlier this spring. "It felt pretty good," said Harkey after his workout. "We'll just take it one day at a time." Manager Don Zimmer, who is counting on Harkey being one of his four starters, said the right-hander's problem will probably come and go. "One day he'll be able to pitch and the next day he won't. He's had a problem. It's not a big problem,

Spring training report but we'll let him back it off when we have to," said Zimmer.

Sox Camp

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Melido Perez pitched two perfect innings while off-season acquisition Cory Snyder homered in leading coach Ed Brinkman's team to a 12-3 rout of coach Joe Nosssek's in an intrasquad game Tuesday at the Chicago White Sox spring camp. Lance Johnson, Robin Ventura and Craig Grebeck each had three hits. "To see some of the guys swinging the bat today was nice. Lance is in mid-season form," said manager Jeff Torborg. Perez, who opened the 1990 season as the No. 1 starter, is fourth in the rotation this spring.

Green Bay earns NCAA tourney berth

Defense keys 56-39 win over NIU

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Dean Vander Plas scored 18 points and Tony Bennett sparked a 21-3 second-half run Tuesday night as Wisconsin-Green Bay earned its first NCAA tournament bid by beating Northern Illinois 56-39 in the Mid-Continent Conference tournament finals.

Wisconsin-Green Bay (24-6) trailed 19-17 at the half with Bennett, the team's leading scorer, scoreless. But when Bennett found the range with 14 points in the second half, so did the Phoenix.

Northern Illinois (25-5), the regular-season champion, lost for the third time this season to Wisconsin-Green Bay. The Huskies were led by Donnell Thomas and Donald Whiteside with 10 points each.

Bennett, who averaged 22 points this season, missed all six of his first-half shots. When he hit his second 3-pointer of the second half, Wisconsin-Green Bay had a 35-31 lead with 9:12 to play.

Mike Lipinsky came back with a 3-pointer for the Huskies with 8:44 left but Northern could manage only five points the rest of the way. Leading 35-34, Green Bay scored six straight points.

Jeremy Ludvigson tipped in a miss, Dean Rondorf hit two free throws and Bennett fed John Martinez for a layup after a Rondorf steal. That gave the Phoenix a 41-34 lead with 6:55 remaining.

Bennett then drove for a short jumper and, after Northern's Thomas scored, Ludvigson converted a three-point play with 5:01 left. That gave Wisconsin-Green Bay a 46-36 lead.

When the bulky 6-foot-4, 235-pound Vander Plas converted another three-point play with 2:27 left, Wisconsin-Green Bay had a 52-37 lead and the sellout crowd of 6,197 in the Brown County Arena chanted "NCAA!"

Northern Illinois built a 13-5 as Green Bay went 6 1/2 minutes without a basket. The Phoenix rallied with a 10-2 run, tying the game on Rondorf's 3-pointer with 4:57 left in the half.

Both teams shot miserably in the first half, Northern making only eight of 21 for 38 percent, Wisconsin-Green Bay seven of 25 for 28 percent. David Wells hit two late baskets for Northern, giving him eight points for the half, and Northern had a 19-17 lead.

Bennett named Mid-Con Player of the Year; Jones, Rowe named to 2nd team

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Wisconsin-Green Bay guard Tony Bennett, who led the Mid-Continent Conference this season with 22 points per game, was named the league's Player of the Year earlier this week.

Northern Illinois forward Donnell Thomas and guard Donald Whiteside were also named to the first-team All-Conference squad, along with Cleveland State's Steve Givens, Pete Freeman of Akron and Western Illinois' Ron Ateman.

Bennett, the son of Phoenix head coach Dick, led the conference in scoring all year and finished the season ranked in the top five in field goal percentage (4th), 3-point percentage (1st), assists (1st), free throw percentage (1st) and steals (3rd).

Eastern guards Gerald Jones and Steve Rowe were named to the second team. They were Valparaiso's Tra Gibson, Illinois-Chicago's Brian Hill and Troy Muilenburg from Northern Iowa.

Two of Mike Boyd's freshmen at Cleveland State, Mike Wawrzyniak and Anthony Reed, led the All-Newcomer team. Akron's Roy Coleman and Western's Preston Lewis also were named to the team. NIU's Mike Lipinsky also was named to the all-freshman team.

Northern's Jim Molinari, who coached his second Huskies squad to the regular season title in their first year of league play, was named the Mid-Continent Coach of the Year after leading Northern to a 23-4 regular season slate.

St. Anthony tips Madison 82-81 in OT

By R.J. GERBER
Sports editor

After falling behind by as many as 17 points in the first half, Effingham St. Anthony came back and won an 82-81 overtime victory against Madison in the Charleston Super-sectional Tuesday at Lantz Gym.

The Bulldogs (27-4) move on to the Assembly Hall in Champaign as an Elite Eight member in search of the Illinois Class A high school championship. Madison (20-8) ended its season after beating Venice in regional play and knocking off defending state champ Trenton-Wesclin in the sectional final 63-60.

St. Anthony trailed the entire game until Bulldog forward Tony Bryant, who scored a game-high 31 points, nailed a three-pointer with four seconds remaining to send the game into overtime.

In the extra three minutes Bryant scored four of the Bulldogs' six points and he said he was glad to see he made some contributions.

"I had been having a bad game until then," Bryant said. "I just tried to keep my head in the game. The shots have been falling like that for me all year."

Bryant, who collected a game-high 12 rebounds, said when his team fell behind 36-19 in the first half, he wasn't going to give up.

"We kept our composure," Bryant said. "We could have curled up and died, but we didn't want to back down. A couple of our guys were intimidated at the beginning, probably because they haven't played in big games like this."

The Bulldogs fell behind early to the Trojans, who had 15 steals and eight blocked shots. The Madison pressure defense forced St.

Bartlett leads Bulldogs athletics to success

Dave Bartlett stood just outside the Lantz Gym doors after his Effingham St. Anthony High School basketball team's Class A Super-sectional contest against Madison High.

"If there was a better final 16 game, I'd like to see it," said Bartlett after his team's comeback, 82-81 overtime victory over the Trojans in front of 3,414 fans.

The win moves the 27-4 Bulldogs into the Elite Eight Friday at the University of Illinois' Assembly Hall in Champaign.

But moving into the state playoffs is nothing new to Bartlett, a former graduate student at Eastern and volunteer assistant coach for Rick Samuels' Panthers seven years ago.

Bartlett, in his sixth year as the rural high school's athletic director, basketball general and baseball skipper, coached his Bulldog baseball team to the state tournament last spring.

"He's brought a lot of enthusiasm to the St. Anthony program," Samuels said. "He's done a nice job getting kids involved there and obviously they played very hard."

"He's just done a good job. Their kids won one of our team (summer) camps last year on this floor, kind of in the same fashion, so they've won some games on this court."

Bartlett attributed his team's comeback to its "never say die" attitude that Bartlett said isn't anything new for the Bulldogs.

I've got some kids that just don't quit.

"I've got some kids that don't quit," Bartlett said. "I just didn't give up, and it's been kind of a tradition at St. Anthony for a long time."

"It's hard to single out players — but all of them play as hard as they can possibly play."

Before he went on to take a multi-duty position at St. Anthony, Bartlett spent several years part-time as an Effingham assistant, the first year of which he was the head basketball coach at Windsor High School. Two years earlier, he served as an assistant for the Bulldogs.

"He's really changed the way of our athletic system around," assistant coach Dave Woltman said. "We've had a lot of success in all sports, and all due to him. He does the real well."

The success that Bartlett brought with him has some assistants worried that he might move on to a bigger program.

"Certainly that's a possibility," Woltman said. "He's done a good job and built the program up to where it is today, and it's all a credit to him."
